

Management Consulting Firm Takes “Generational Integration” to Heart
Sean O’Neil Partners with Mary Ann O’Neil, Founder of One to One Leadership

Pelham, NY and Longboat Key, FL (November 6, 2007) – One to One Leadership, a management consulting firm noted for cultural immersion and customer intimacy and its focus on three top tenets of management: constructive conversation, rules that work, and personal and professional passion, today announced the appointment of Sean O’Neil as its new Principal.

“With his ‘business trifecta’ background as a former lawyer, social worker and family therapist, Sean brings a non-traditional business perspective to the new position,” says Mary Ann O’Neil, founder of One to One Leadership, a family-owned business she began twenty-five years ago, “When I thought about who to hire to guide our company into the next generation, I could think of no finer candidate than my son, Sean.”

In this new capacity, Mr. O’Neil will oversee the design of new corporate training formats, including Leading Lawyers™, an innovative program that helps lawyers enhance their leadership skills. The program addresses the distinct training needs of law firms based on their project team management structure while incorporating One to One Leadership’s time-tested principles in other industries. International law firm Akin Gump recently hired One to One Leadership to present leadership training to its mid-level associates.

After receiving his B.A. in psychology from the College of the Holy Cross, Mr. O’Neil began his career as a social worker; he then received his M.S.W. from Boston College and went on to become a child and family therapist in the psychiatry department of Children’s Hospital in Boston. Mr. O’Neil then earned his J.D. and M.B.A. from Duke University and spent three years managing real estate transactions for Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher’s New York office. He is a member of the New York State Bar Association.

“Our company distinguishes itself from other consultants by becoming immersed in the business and culture of every firm that hires us and utilizing real-life and client-specific examples as training material, helping participants easily apply new techniques upon their return to work,” Mr. O’Neil said. To that end, Mary Ann O’Neil created a video series on integrating leadership skills and a business communications board game, both of which are regularly used by business leaders around the world.
